"It is no cinch to get a turkey in condition fit for the president of this great country. There is difficulty in picking out the best birds and then picking out the best birds and then selecting from these the very best after the birds are picked, or dressed; which means after the dress of feathers are picked off, or as a matter of fact when the turkey is undressed. Then this bard is carefully wrapped in linen and sent by express to the president, free from blemish or flaw, and, my word for it, the best turkey it is possible to select by any man in these United States is the result.

"I sacrifice weight to quality, but I always manage to get a large turkey, and every time, and don't you forget it! All presidents look alike to me, so for as goes my Thanksgiving turkey gift, and politics has nothing to do with the selection of a turkey of the best possible grade!"

An reply to a query as to the product and price of turkeys in this section. Mr. Vose said:

"There will be as many turkeys marketed here and hereabouts this season as has been, averaged for the past five years. While there has been a dropping off in numbers by some turkey raisers, the loss is made good by the increased flocks of others in the business. Henry A. Adams Found Dead on Barn Floor-Was Former Norwich Resident-Ellwood-Rose Marriage.

John Pryor, who with James Brown, walked out of the Westerly police station about a month ago stille the temporary keeper stepped out on a call for the chief to answer a telephone summons, has been captired in Boston at the request of the Providence police department. Pryor stole a large touring car from a Providence garage, Brown being his companion. The theft was reported to the Providence police and soon after midnight Chief Bransheld captured Pryor and Brown and took charge of the automobile.

The two fellows were taken to the part of room of the police station and the police department of Providence notified by telephone. Pending orders from Providence, the chief went to an enarby restaurant to get some food for the men in custody, leaving Special Officer Barber in charge of the station. During the chief's absence a telephone call came from Providence and the special officer went to summon the chief, supposing that the door to the police station was securely locked. Alarm, but No Fire. On Thursday evening the borough-ites had a scare. At 5.15 the fire alarm whistles blew, sounding an alarm from both Atwood's machine shop and the American velvet mill at the upper end of the town ringing in No. 5. The several fire companies responded, and took a course down Water street and up Main street to where the number would be, but it proved to be from some unknown cause. The wind was blowing a gale and had there been a fire it would have been a hard fight for any fire department.

posure of the elephant. He says he would like to emulate it, but he can-not. He surveyed his home from cellar Ignorance of the Law. Intehfield has raised another technical point over the license question. Last year the town remained wet in the fact of a no-license vote because to attic, but he could not find a place where an elephant weighing several tons would fit. Much of the joy he has felt at the homecoming of his victons would fit. Much of the joy he has felt at the homecoming of his victorious team has been shattered by the impending elephant. He really does not know what he is going to do with the beast, especially when he is away from home on his wedding tour.

In South Philadelphia some of the most enthuslastic rooters of the Athletics live. Everyone downtown wantad to give Mack a present that would interest him, so an elephant was decided on and was bought in New York and taken to Philadelphia.

When the New York Giants beat the Athletics for the championship several years ago Manager McGraw presented a toy white elephant in derision to the losers. Hence the plan for the real white elephant.

Last year the town remained wet in the fact of a no-license vote because of fallure to advertise the town meeting the required number of days before said meeting. This year the town went dry by a majority of five. Liquor men claim that the vote was it legal, alleging that the petition for a vote on the license question was not lodged with the selectmen twenty days before the annual town meeting as required by law, Judge Shumway of the superior court is expected to give his decision tomorrow. Not much sympathy can be wasted on people who lose for such reasons. There is abundant time in which to do the work world and safely and remove it from all possible contention.—Briston Press.
